SUBJECT: INTERN PROGRAM AT THE DIOCESE

It is a pleasure to welcome at the Diocesan Center four Armenian interns who will undertake various responsibilities within the Center. I am sure you will all join us in making them feel at home.

The interns are:

1. Nishan Akgulian, from St. Mesrob Armenian Church of Racine, Wisconsin. He will be working in the Public Relations Office.
2. Christopher Hagop Zakian, from St. Sahag & St. Mesrob Armenian Church in Wynnwood, Pennsylvania, will work in the Department of Religious Education.
3. Michael Kaishian, from St. John The Baptist Armenian Church in Greenfield, Wisconsin. Michael will study Armenian and assist St. Vartan Bookstore.
4. Antranig Barsamian, from the Armenian Church of Our Saviour in Worcester, Massachusetts, will be interning at the Primate's Office.

They will be with us from July 21 through August 22.

MEMORANDUM

Dear Diocesan Staff:

On Monday, June 17th, we will again be hosting four summer interns. This year's interns are;

Sossy Sarikhanian - Georgetown, Texas. Sossy is a graduate from Southwestern University. Her degree is in International Studies and Spanish. Sossy will be working in our Public Relations Department. She will also compile a cultural anthropological study on a segment of our Armenian Culture.

Adam Kouyoumjian - West Willington, Connecticut. Adam is studying Osteopathic Medicine at Chicago College. He will be working in the Zohrab Information Center cataloging the Armenian Missionary files, and working on a research paper.

Christian Casparian - Woodland Hills, California. Christian is a graduate of Princeton University with a degree in Comparative Literature and European Cultural Studies. Christian will be continuing his education at the University of Pennsylvania studying Law. Christian will also be working in the Zohrab Information Center conducting research in preparation for a paper.

Sebouh Aslanian - Watertown, Massachusetts. Sebouh is a graduate of McGill University with a degree in the Humanities. Sebouh will be furthering his education at the New School for Social Research in New York this Fall. Sebouh will also be an intern in the Zohrab Information Center conducting research in preparation for a paper.

I ask you to make these young adults feel welcome this summer, and encourage you to interact with them.

Sincerely,

Antranig

Re: The intern Sebah

Sebah called me Sunday [June 23, 1991] afternoon, telling me he was in Boston. He asked me if it was all right to do some research at the Zorian Institute on Monday. Apparently he had seen information there which he considers important for his work. I asked him if he informed the authorities at the Diocese. He said that he had told Chris who had said he could take the day off. I told him that hereafter he had to let us know one week in advance. He promised to show me the research he had done as soon as I arrived at the Diocese on Tuesday afternoon.

Last Wednesday we did not have the opportunity to discuss certain things about the interns. They were under the impression that in Antrenig's absence Chire would be in charge. I asked Chris; he told me that he had heard the same thing but he was not officially aware of his responsibility. The question came up when the interns asked me if it would be all right to go to a library occasionally to do research. I explained to them that since they were employees of the Diocese, they had to get permission to leave the premises during working hours. It was not clear who should give them the permission. Let's consider this matter carefully, before we have problems. We cannot deny them permission, but there must be some kind of a procedure they must follow.
