Dear Mrs. Kachadourian:

It was with some sorrow but also the joy of so many years of service that I heard of your retirement as Sunday School Superintendent of the St. Gregory Sunday School in Binghamton, New York.

Not only countless children and young people but every adult member of the St. Gregory community has benefited from your love and direction. Teaching the faith is not a job; its is a sacred vocation, a calling. You have followed that calling down many difficult paths but you have never wavered, you have never been anything but joyous and faithful. How happy is the Lord in such joy and faith!

I know you continue to serve on the Women's Central Council and in other areas of church life; in that way we are blessed. God bless you for your years of devotion to the church's children and may He shower you with all the gifts of the Spirit you have so freely given for so long.

With prayers,

Bishop Khajag Barsamian
Primate
